gether and be real close friends were it not for that trouble-making bug. Poll-In many respects their enmity is the country's loss, for by working to gether they might do much to better the condition of every one of us.

Yet it is doubtful if without a great deal of experience they could edit a big newspaper like next Sunday's World Their brains, for instance, are too much customed to weigh things from or coint of view-warped by politics, as ere. They don't look around and take in everything at once, as the men get ing out a Sunday World must do.

Either Bryan or McKinley, of course would have sense enough to see, when It had been suggested to him, that there was a splendid "Sunday story" in the

At any rate the way that Uncle Sam's coin is being scattered in Paris will open your eyes of it. So will the Sunday World's great double-page pleture, in colors, of the people who are squandering their wealth

Now Bryan and McKinley, in all probability, having made this highly inter-esting story a feature of the Sunday World they were editing, would have said, "There's a good five cents' worth. Let's save everything else till nex week." Not so with the Sunday World people of to-day. They furnish this one Awful Havoc to Follow feature simply to whet your appetite for more.
